Ashley Schick has been working closely with the Georgia Tech Library on their new Communication Through Art program. In collaboration with local artists the program seeks to engage students through the incorporation of visual arts based projects into the curriculum. Ms. Schick was a guest lecturer and workshop facilitator in multiple Georgia Tech classes through 2014 & 2015.

Ashley Schick makes works on paper and artists’ books. The daughter of a biology teacher and an electrical engineer, the imagery in her work spans from natural and organic forms to industrial infrastructure and debris. She currently works as the Studio Program Director for One Love Generation, a non-profit organization empowering teens to inspire positive change through art, service, and awareness. Ms. Schick was an artist’s assistant to sculptor Brian Dettmer for over two years. From the fall of 2011 to the fall of 2013, she was a resident in the Creatives Project’s Artist-In-Studio Residency Program. In 2012, she co-founded Straw Hat Press. Additionally, Ms. Schick has taught many workshops, and completed residencies at the Haystack Mountain School of Crafts in Maine and at the Skopelos Foundation for the Arts in Greece. Her work has been exhibited nationally and internationally. She currently lives and works in Atlanta, GA.
